About the author:

Sandra Markle has written over 200 nonfiction books for children, many of them winning national awards. She says she writes because, "I wanted to share my love of science with children." As a former elementary science teacher, she is a nationally-known science education consultant. Several of her books are used in science curricula around the country. The book What If You Had Animal Eyes!? is her most recent addition to the What If series. Ms. Markle lives in Lakewood Ranch, Florida, with her husband, photographer Skip Jeffery.
